PERSONAL RELIGION

This month Dr. Stephen S. Wise celebrates the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of his "Hebrew Free Synagogue.',

Known as one of the foremost orators of the continent, Dr.Wise attracts as big crowds to his services as does the most popular pugilist-evangelist to his salvation dispensary. Indeed on performance days Carnegie Hall, where Dr. Wise doles out morsels of Judaism, is one of the leading points of interest to tourists and sight-seers. For a stranger to be in New York and not to "do" Wise is as improper and unpardonable as to omit the Metropolitan Museum or Chinatown.

Dr. Wise's pulpit is not affiliated with any group or section of the American Jewish ministry. It is primarily and essentially the product and projection of his own personality. It is the untrammelled medium for the expression of Dr. Wise's own ideas and views on matters within the scope of his interest. Dr. Wise does not have to take dictation either from the clerical mediocrities who usually vocalize at conferences, or from the moneyed nonentities who generally infest the synagogue and temple boards. In this respect Dr. Wise is happily circumstanced.

Lacking the profound traditional background of Orthodox Judaism and the rationalist substratum of Reform Judaism, Dr. Wise's Free Synagogue stands only for as much content as Dr. Wise can impart to it out of the store house of his own intellect and spirit. Now, while it will be readily recognized that Dr. Wise is an orator of distinction and a dominating personality, it will be conceded that he fails far short of being a first-rate scholar or thinker. Dr. Wise is too steeped in the pragmatic philosophy of America to be a real spiritual force in life. He cannot lead men's hearts. He cannot be the bearer of an inspiring message to people who are craving for a sustaining faith. His pulpit can at best be only a sort of Pathé review of current events delivered in the ministerial accent.

What saved Dr. Wise's Synagogue from absolute sterility was his espousal of Zionism. Reform Judaism discarding the massive sanctuaries of traditional Judaism has at least the rationalist literature of the German-Jewish scholars to lean upon for nourishment. It can thus afford to spurn the ideology of Zionism. Wise's Synagogue has no literature other than the weekly digests to feed upon. Were it not for Zionism, therefore, it would be entirely barren of broad, basic ideas. Wise enriches his synagogue with the ideals and doctrines of Zionism.

Wise is not a great religious leader. He has not the true religious temperament. He is not the creator of a new religious cult of any permanent value. But withal he is a forceful personality. And he has rendered very conspicuous service to the cause of American Jewry.

WITCH-HUNTING IN TORONTO

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

Canada's only woman in Parliament has loosened a veritable avalanche of criticism about herself by her letter about China to the school children in her riding, and by her opposition to the parliamentary appropriation for the cadet system of military training in the public schools. Patriotic bodies have cancelled their invitations to have her address them. Resolutions were hurriedly drawn up condemning her. Prominent citizens hurled invectives at her. Newspaper editorials thundered forth their violent disapproval. Threats even to do her physical harm, to tar and feather her were published in the press. All the mechanism of chauvinistic hysteria was in evidence.

We were treated to a modern witch-hunt. Miss MacPhail was possessed of the devil of unpopular ideas, and lest she communicate her deviltry, her ideas, to others, she had to be quarantined—that all right-thinkers might know that she is unclean and leprous. Conventional respectibility excommunicated her. A group of teachers and a group of celebrating suffragettes, fearing to be polluted, refused to have her on their platform. It has since developed that the statements made by Miss MacPhail about China which created the initial furore are also made in an official history text-book of the public schools in her riding, and that teachers had been teaching them to their children for years. Furthermore, the authors of this text-book, Professors Robinson and Beard, are scholars of distinction, known for their fair-mindedness and of international repute. How foolish and silly these excited witch-hunters must feel now, when the witch they were hunting turns out to be, if not a saint, certainly a well-informed, conscientious public servant!

It is distasteful to be reminded that Great Britain forced opium on the unwilling Chinese. But if one is to be at all fair to China in this crisis, all the facts about her contacts with European nations should be laid bare, and particularly should this be done when yellow newspapers begin their campaigns of vituperation and mud-slinging against a great nation of four hundred million people. The whole uproar in connection with Miss MacPhail's letter is due to a misunderstanding of patriotism. For the witch-hunters, we must admit, were animated in their hunt by patriotic motives. To them it appears, the patriot must blind himself to his country's vices. For them the slogan of "My Country Right or Wrong, My Country" holds. For them a people must like sheep follow unquestioningly the lead of its chancellors in their foreign policies. Any tyro knows that the sea of diplomatic intrigue and chicanery is foul and pestilential, that every nation in the course of its career stains its reputation by its consent to something which does not square with ethical or spiritual standards.

For the true and intelligent patriot, the slogan, "My country right, to keep her right; my country wrong, to set her right" holds. He does not whitewash the sins of his country. He recognizes them is pained by them, and determines to avoid them in the future

Herr Alfred Neumann, a young German-Jewish author who is hailed throughout the Reich for his brilliancy, has won the German Literature Prize. And he received it. It wasn't always so. In other days everything was done to deprive Jewish students and Jewish writers of their rights. One recalls the case of the late Dr. Solomon Fuchs, the brilliant scholar. He came to Berlin from Bohemstock. He so mastered the German language that he won the gold medal for German. But he didn't get the award. It was given to the son of Von Puttkammer, the Prussian Minister of State. The authorities declared that Fuchs, being a foreigner, could not be given the highest award though he was entitled to it. But everybody knew that this was not the real reason. Fuchs was a Jew and that was all there was to it.

"Uncle Nick" Hartman, Baltimore's oldest citizen, died at the age of 110. Born ten years before the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was established, he told stories of early railroad days when like as not a train would be stopped by Indians or buffalo, and an average of ten miles an hour was considered excellent time. He was 44 when the Civil War began. He leaves five children, eighteen grandchildren, twenty-eight great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

On the Road

(A Chaluz Tells His Story)

By E. David Goitein

Were I poet I would sing you a song of Safed, the sweetest spot in Palestine. Palestine. But I cannot lay claim to the magic spell of the muse and since prose is not worthy to tell the tale of divine Safed, I leave the tale untold. As I was walking away from Safed I came upon a young man who was singing lustily to himself as if there were no one but he in the world. He was taking great strides and his arms were swinging by his side.

"Shalom u'vracha, adoni."

"Shalom," he replied and went on singing.

"May I walk along with you? We appear to be going the same way."

"Im ata rotzeh"—and he went on singing. When the song had come to an end, he said:

"You speak Hebrew?"

"A little."

"But you are a Christian."

"No, a Jew."

"I do not believe it."

"I am sorry."

"You are a meshummad?"

"Chas v'halilah."

"You do not look a Jew."

"What then?"

"An Englishman."

"Well, I am a Jew from England, does that satisfy you?"

Then he began singing again "Eyneha Shehoroth."

> "Black were her eyes
> As they flashed upon me;
> Black! O God!
> Might I see her eyes!
> When I looked again
> They were gone, gone from me.
> Bewitching eyes!"

"You are going to Rosh Pinah?" he said.

"Yes."

"There is a short cut over the mountain. Come—this way.

I followed him, agile, happy, carefree. After some five and twenty minutes he said:

"Sit down. We will talk. There is no hurry.'

"I have plenty of time."

"Do you know what you are? I will tell you—a tourist. Do you think I care for tourists? Not that much"—he snapped his fingers. "You come here and look at out country. Why don't you come and work it? . . . I have told you what you are; now I will tell you what I am. I am a baal teshuva. Do you know what that means? A baal teshuva—a penitent. I am a German and I have been baptized. I was baptized when I was sixteen years old because I did not see that there was any sense in being a Jew. Not that I thought very much of Christianity. I expect it is all right for some. Never mind. I was a prominent member of the Viennese branch of the Hakenkreuzler and I used to amuse myself in scrawling black swastikas over Jewish notices. One day I was in the university, messing up a Jewish students' notice when Asher Goldberg. Do you know him?"

"I don't think I do."

"Nor his sister?"

"No."

"Asher Goldberg came up to me and he said: 'Are you an idiot or a pig?' Well, I knocked him over for that and told him he was a dirty Jew and ought to mind his own business. That was my first meeting with Asher. But he stuck to me like a leech, talked at me in season and out of season till he made me feel thoroughly ashamed of myself. At the same time I was getting tired of my anti-Semitic friends. They were such idiots. Some, I believe, were mad. . . . Asher induced me to come to Palestine. Well, I came. I bathed in the Jordan as soon as I arrived and so cleared myself of the waters of baptism. They offered me a comfortable job in Jerusalem. But I had come here to work. And I have worked. God in heaven—if He is there—knows that I haven't slacked. This is my first holiday in three years. I've hacked stone in the hills of Judah, I've planted tobacco in the Emek. . . . and, by Elijah's beard, this is life. Do you think I ever sang in Vienna—ha? But I've never left off singing since I've been here. And I haven't earned a grush. I haven't a grush in the world. Well—may the devel take those who would make money out of poor Palestine. Shodedim!"

"Where are you working now?"

"In Rosh Pinah—God's own colony. 'Even ma-asu hadonim, hayeta l'Rosh Pinah.' I am the rejected stone—you follow?—and now I am in Rosh Pinah. Come we have been lying here long enough."

"Tell me, are the members of the Hakenkreuz——"

"La-azazel! Don't dare to talk about them. Talk about Palestine."

"As you wish."

"Have you a cigarette?"

"Certainly."

"Give me one—please."

"Which do you prefer, Turkish or—"

"I will keep both packets. You can buy some more, I can't."

I laughed and gave him the two packets, admiring his "highwayman" methods.

"I will teach you a Hebrew song for those two boxes. Do you agree?"

"Your own invention?"

"Yes."

"You are a poet?"

"No, I am a chalutz—I work. But sometimes when I feel very happy I make up a song. Two of them have already been printed in Ha-aretz."

"That one I heard you singing—'Eyneha Shehoroth'—was that yours?"

"Yes. Here is a better one, 'Avadim Hayinu L'Pharo'."

The poem was bitterly satirical, lashing the Jew of the exile with refreshing virility.

"The waters of baptism," said I, when he had finished, "seem to have been entirely washed away!"

"Col tippah v'tippah," he replied.

"Do you not find it difficult to live on the land after having lived in a city for . . . ."

"You are not the first fool to have asked me that," he answered bluntly.

"What did you answer the other fools?"

"According to their folly. But you don't seem such a fool as the others. . . ."

"Rav todoth."

"Therefore I will tell you. . . . Your cigarettes are good. Will you have one? . . . In Vienna you can work and work, use up every ounce of nervous energy, till you are a physical wreck. . . . You have no idea what percentage of Viennese Jews commit suicide every year. . . . And what do you see from it all? Nothing. What results do you get? None. But here in Rosh Pinah, we plow, we sow—and next year, something grows. We can see the fruits of our labours. . . . I know what you are saying to yourself. Here there are no operas, no theatres. . . . True! Emet! V'gam ayn po zonoth—rak, ma yesh? It is better without them. Let me hear the singing—ziph, ziph, ziph—of the birds in the early morning and I will give you Wagner and Beethoven, as a present. . . . We Jews must work the soil, otherwise our raison d'être is gone."

So he talked, and it did you good to hear him. I scarcely noticed the time slip by, but looking ahead I saw Rosh Pinah loom into sight. . . . In the distance Hermon with his hood of snow.

"Good-bye," I said, "Palestine could do with a few more people like you."

He did not shake hand, just turned and went away. I stood still and watched him. His arms swinging by his side and with head erect he sang as before:

"Black were her eyes
As they flashed upon me. . . ."

German Anti-Semites Continue Propaganda

The anti-Semitic forces in Germany, concentrated for some time in Bavaria, under the leadership of Adolf Hitler, have not abated and are beginning to assert themselves more loudly after a silence of two years. Hitler himself was recently given permission for the first time to make a public address and he utilized the opportunity to explain to his audience the danger of having Jews in their midst. He accused the Jews of being responsible for this present machine age and the proletarianization of the people which accompanied it, The Jews worked with teh one idea of forming a party of proletarians which would at one time take over the State. Wherever this struggle resulted in victory, the victory was not for the proletariat but for the international Jewish finance.

The second wife of Eric von Ludendorff, former German war lord, who was before her marriage to Ludendorff the wife of a Jewish banker, has of late taken up the profession of her husband of progagating anti-Semitism in Germany. In an address which she delivered recently in Berlin she let loose all the ancient charges against the Jews, accompanied by a number of misstatements and absurdities of all kinds. Ludendorff himself is now under the shadow of suspicion of having been instrumental in the assassination of Walter Rathenau. This was hinted at by the State attorney during a trial in Giessen and it is quite possible that an inquiry will be instituted.

The Jews of Magdeburg are very much exercised over the verdict of the Supreme Court of Naumburg in the disciplinary action against the two judges of Magdeburg. It will be recalled that some time ago the Jewish merchant, Dr. Rudolph Haas, was arrested on suspicion that he was implicated in the murder of his bookkeeper, Heilig. Although all evidence showed that Haas was innocent and that the murder was committed by Schroeder, who later confessed, Judge Koeling, the investigating judge, and Judge Hoffman, the director of the Magdeburg Court, refused to release Haas from prison. The case was taken to the Supreme Court and this body, having found the judges guilty, pronounced the verdict that Judge Koeling should be reprimanded and Judge Hoffman should be transferred to another position of equal rank. The press expressed its surprise at this mild sentence, especially since it is well known that the judges were actuated simply by anti-Semitic bias and should therefore be dealt with more severely.

An interesting libel case, in which Foreign Minister Hugo Stresemann is involved, is now being tried in the Berlin courts. A certain Mueller, the editor of an anti-Semitic paper, published an article in which it is shown that Stresemann declared in court that he had relations with a Russian Jew, Litwan, who has become a German citizen, and that this Litwan was receiving many concessions from the Government as a result of his association with the popular Minister. Stresemann declared in court that he saw no reason why he could not enter into business relation with a Jew and especially since the character of Litwan's business was shown to be without reproach. The case is arousing a great deal of interest in Germany, in view of the great prominence of the plaintiff and his popularity resulting from his recent victory at Geneva.

One of the last acts of the late Dr. Paul Nathan was to publish a letter in which he showed that Ludendorff prevented what might have been a general slaughter of Russian Jews. When the Germans occupied large areas of old Russia, the military leaders were about to carry out a plan of sending a large number of Jews to America, in order to reduce the number of consumers in the district. Since the ocean was then infested with submarines, it was almost certain that the ships carrying these refugees would be torpedoed and Dr. Nathan headed a delegation to intercede with Ludendorff against this barbarous plan. As a matter of justice, Dr. Nathan just before his death, made public the fact that it was Ludendorff who vetoed the plan.

The fiftieth anniversary of the death of Johann Jacoby, one of the pioneers in the fight for democracy in Germany, was celebrated throughout Germany recently.

Prof. Thomas C. Masaryk, president of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, and his suite arrived in Jerusalem. President Masaryk, who was accompanied by the Czechoslovakian Minister at Cairo, was welcomed by Col. Symes, civil secretary of the Palestine government, Mr. Mavrogordato, chief of the Jerusalem police, Col. Keith-Roach and Mayor Nashashibi. Prof. Masaryk, who visited Tel Aviv after Jerusalem, was accorded an enthusiastic reception by the Jewish population of the city. Rabbi Sonnenfeld greeted Prof. Masaryk on behalf of the Hungarian Jews in Palestine.

The Manufacturers' Association of Tel Aviv has decided to submit to the High Commissioner, through a special delegation, a memorandum dealing with a number of questions affecting the position of industry in Palestine, states a report from Jerusalem to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. The Association has also decided to ask that the question of Palestine industry be raised in the House of Commons and that the British press be furnished with information concerning Palestine industry, states the report.

An area of 2,000 dunams of land was purchased by the Gan Chaim Corporation for an orange plantation, declared Elihu D. Stone, Boston Zionist and member of the Boston Businessmen's delegation to Palestine, which, after a tour of the country, sailed for the United States. Mr. Stone stated that the businessmen's delegation has formed a corporation which will be called Gan Chaim in honour of Dr. Chaim Weizmann. The corporation is also considering the establishment of a bank, he stated. An executive committee was appointed to conduct the affairs of the corporation in Palestine.

The Jerusalem Library has received from the Central Government Publishers in Moscow, a collection of scientific Russian periodicals. The shipment contains about 600 different periodicals in all branches of science; and in particular, with regard to librarianship, education, law, medicine, agriculture and other branches. The Russian Government has notified the Library that they will continue to send these publications hereafter.

The Tarbuth Publishing Co., of Jerusalem recently published a work on the philosophy of Immanuel Kant by Dr. Hugo Bergmann, Director of the Jewish National and University Library in Jerusalem. This volume gives for the first time in Hebrew a comprehensive exposition of the system of critical philosophy. The book contains also a Hebrew-German index of the philosphical terms used by the author.

Jewish Agricultural Colonies in Russia

The first conference of the new Jewish Soviet in the Cherson region was opened last week in Sadeh Menucha, the principal town in the region and the oldest Jewish colony in the district. The event was celebrated by a large concourse of farmers who came from all parts of the district and who crowded the Volkshaus, so that it was necessary to adjourn the sessions to the market place. Dr. Joseph A. Rosen, the representative of the American Joint Distribution Committee, delivered an address of welcome to the assembled delegates and assured them of the great interest in their welfare of the American Jews and their readiness to assist them in their new enterprise. Addresses were also delivered by representatives of the Government, who took occasion to condemn antisemitism in any form. Some of the older farmers gave a vivid description of the early attempts made at farming by Jews and the many struggles that they had to pass through.

Dr. A. Singalowsky, a member of the Central Board of the ORT, who has been staying in London, after a tour of inspection of the Jewish colonies in Soviet Russia, gave a lengthy interview to a correspondent of the London Jewish Chronicle regarding the conditions as he found them. In the first place, he endeavours to make it clear that the movement was not something imposed upon the Russian Jews from without, but that it was a spontaneous movement arising from the people themselves, who came to realize that under the changed conditions in Russia this would be the only safeguard against their complete destruction. He says: "It is important that the Jews the world over should know that the rush to the land and the new Jewish colonization in Russia was not brought about by the Ort, or the J. D. C., or the J. C. A., but by the Russian Jewish people themselves, and that it was at a subsequent stage that the organizations appeared on the scene and made an attempt to instil some system and order in the movement."

He describes one colony by the name of Tagancha, which is settled exclusively by Jewish families who escaped the slaughter conducted by the Petlura bands in the small town in the district of Kiev, by the name of Tagancha. After the destruction of the town there were forty Jewish familiess who managed to escape, but who remained without any means of livelihood. When they heard that the Government was ready to distribute land free, they immediately combined and migrated to the country and called the name of their colony after the old village from which they came. This colony is now in a prosperous condition and the Jews there are happy and hopeful.

Dr. Singalowsky estimated that about fifty per cent. of the entire Jewish population in Russia is at present engaged in productive work, although quite a number of the labourers are not employed at present and the income of many others is very small. Of the other fifty per cent. about ten per cent. are merchants who make a decent living, whilst most of the others still continue as "Luftmenschen," eking out a miserable existence through help supplied them by relatives in America or by charitable organizations. He came to the conclusion as a result of his studies on the spot, that the agricultural movement is bound to bring many blessings to the Jewish population in Russia. He was not afraid that this would bring about antisemitic action on the part of the Russian peasantry. The area nationalized from Jewish land-owners amounts to nearly two million hectares, while the Jewish colonists have thus far been given no more than 200,000 hectares.

An experiment to create a peasant university in the district settled by Jewish colonists was recently made by an American Jew, Dr. Charles Kuntz. The idea is to have an agricultural college established where students might have the opportunity to study agriculture together with their practical experience in the field. The Government set aside an old monastery for that purpose, which will accommodate 500 students, and it is expected that the institution will be opened for 100 students next fall.

Reuben Brainin, writing in the Jewish Day, says that sensible people in Detroit doubt the whole story of Henry Ford's accident and regard it as a mystifying legend. He says that Ford dreads appearing at the trial where he will be asked to substantiate his libels and becomes hysterical at very mention of the trial. Whether or not Ford actually was the victim of an accident or an attempt on his life there is no doubt that he looks back on the last trial he figured in with anything but relish. If he proves hard to get to the Sapiro trial perhaps it is because his memory of the Ford-Chicago Tribune trial serves him so well. He will never be able to live down that time with its revelation of his ignorance, its humiliations and unpleasant places, and if his hatred of courtrooms is deep no one can blame him.

Jack Elliven, in the Jewish Forum, tells how hard it was for Fitzgerald, an associate of Gallagher, Sapiro's attorney, to serve a subpoena on Ford. Early in August, as the time in which to serve the document grew short, Fitzgerald took advantage of the fact that the second annual commercial aeroplane reliability tour was to take off from the Ford airport where the public was invited to view preliminary tests. With his hand in his pocket holding the document Fitzgerald, by rare luck, found the opportunity to approach Ford's car and say: "Mr. Ford, I am serving you with a subpoena ordering you to appear as a witness in the United States District Court." As the manufacturer's face paled and he sat dumbfounded Fitzgerald showed him the original document and placed the duplicate in Ford's lap. Ford threw up his hands and shouted "No, no, no!" Fitzgerald answered "Yes, yes, yes!" and backed away. Ford's chauffeur reached for the document and tossed it outside the car but it fluttered back on the running board. Fitzgerald ran for a while and then slowed down to a walk near his own car. As the Ford automobile passed him one of the guards leaped from the running board and shoved the subpoena back into Fitzgerald's pocket. The attorney threw the paper back at the guard and told him that it had already been served and he didn't want it. Ford's car had stopped farther down the road and the chauffeur returned to tell Fitzgerald it was all a mistake, that he had served the subpoena on John Ford, Henry Ford's brother. During the altercation that followed a crowd gathered and a Michigan State policeman came up to ask what it was about. Fitzgerald, although within whispering distance, shouted that he had just served a subpoena on Henry Ford. The policeman demanded to see the document and then said Fitzgerald had served it without the proper authority. The lawyer refused to discuss the legality of the service with the state policeman and departed in a cloud of veiled threats and curses. The next day Fitzgerald filed the service at the district clerk's office and reported to Gallagher that Henry Ford would be ready to take the stand when the trial opened.

So far the accident or attempted assassination or frame-up has prevented Ford's appearance. Whatever it is that has caused the delay the Jewish people want Henry Ford brought on and if their eyes dance and they rub their hands with glee it serves Ford right. No element could regret injury to Ford at this time more than the Jewish element. No Jew would want Ford hurt or his life in danger. What almost any Jew would want would be to get Ford on the stand, out in the near open at last with the whole world listening.

For years he has circulated through the Dearborn Independent a great stream of race libel, race calumny, race hatred, causing distress and heart-ache to millions of people helpless to answer. It has cost him money to do this, for the Dearborn Independent runs at a loss, and it cost him the good-will, the kindly feeling of every race-conscious Jew and fair-minded non-Jew. To pay so heavily Ford must be sincere in believing that the Jews constitute an abhorrent menace to the other people in the United States. The New York Times suggests that if Ford really is honest and honourable he will waive his lawful right to protection against any irregular cross-examination and will either try to justify his charges against the Jews or retract them. There are wider proportions to the case than those defined by Sapiro and Ford and the Jewish world, at least, awaits the words of the defendant.

Einstein Has Never Explained His Famous Theory to His Wife, who Does Figuring on Grocery Bills

By MRS. ALBERT EINSTEIN

To be the wife of a genius is not the ideal life. Far from it. Your life doesn't belong to you. It belongs to the public. Every minute of my day belongs to my husband—and therefore to the public.

Take a day in my life: After a slight breakfast, I open my husband's mail and assort it according to language classifications: French, German, Spanish, Italian and English. Prof. Einstein's letters come from all parts of the world. They are written in all languages and in all manner of handwritings. The minimum number of letters is twenty a day. And the maximum climbs into hundreds. All these I read and judge whether they are worth replying to, classifying them in this way: Letters that must be answered immediately; letters that can wait a day or two; letters that need not be answered for another week; letters that need not be answered at all; letters that the Professor himself should read; letters that I must read to him, and letters that I must translate to him.

There are always dozens of letters from artists and sculptors who want the professor to sit for them. Then there are numbers of photographers who beseech the professor to pose. Then there are newspapers and magazine writers who clamor for interviews. Other letters want indorsements for inventions. Still others want autographed photographs. Equally numerous are the letters from people who want to know more about the theory; who want to dispute the theory or who want to improve it.

These letters I can't answer. I know nothing at all about the Einstein theory. I am not scientifically inclined. Furthermore, my husband's time is far too valuable for me to waste it by demanding an explanation or a so-called simplification of the theory. My husband himself has never offered to explain it to me.

As a matter of fact, I have a rather limited education. I went through the grade and high school but never attended college. I speak and read and write English, German and French, but I could hardly be called a highly educated woman. I am not talented in any direction except in that of being a wife and mother.

My interest in mathematics is largely confined to the grocery bill.

It is a matter of record that my husband does not think very highly of the scientific acumen of women. When you mention Mme. Curie to him, he says: "She is the exception to the rule. When you will produce four other women like Mme. Curie then you have established something of a foundation for a new rule."

In the professor's estimation, women who are capable of grasping the scientific formulae, facts and inventions are no longer women but a sort of neutral people—a people without sex. My husband does believe in making the path as smooth as possible for the woman who aspires to a thorough scientific grounding, but he is sceptical of the results. In his opinion, nature has created woman in a manner that makes it difficult for him to expect as much from a woman as from a man.

But, back to the post-box.

The process of sorting the letters takes me all morning. Before lunch, I consult the appointment book and see what engagements I may have made for my husband. In the afternoon or evening, whenever there is time, I answer letters. When the appointments loom up, I remind the professor. Most of his engagements entail my receiving a large number of visitors. There isn't a day that passes when we are home that some noted scientist or savant does not come to call on my husband. They come from Russia, China, Japan, England, Spain, America—from the four corners of the earth.

We rarely go out when we are at home in Berlin. Our evenings are given up to clearing away that voluminous correspondence and in entertaining visitors. Only a good Mozart, Beethoven or Haydn concert will lure my husband out. My husband is very fond of music, particularly of these composers. He has taught himself to play the violin and prefers playing Mozart to all others. He has no interest in modern music.

As soon as we return from a trip the professor will immediately go to the piano and begin to improvise. He misses his piano as if it were a human being he loved. And I always feel while he improvises that this is his way of talking to his piano.

These latter years we have been travelling a great deal in China, Japan and in the United States. These trips have always been in the nature of a public ceremony. I love travelling, but this kind of travel I am not particularly fond of. Much as I am honoured by the fact that potentates, prime ministers, poets and savants all turn out to do homage and make us comfortable, continual receptions are most enervating.

We are whizzed through cities in autos and shown the sights painstakingly. We stop abruptly at all points of interest and leave them just as abruptly. Unless I have stayed at least a month in a place I rarely get the spirit or the tempo of it. Do not for a moment think that I am either bored or ungrateful. I am not at all bored with these kaleidoscopic sight-seeings or with meeting the most important and brainiest people of to-day. On the contrary, I am proud of the honours showered upon the professor, and I am excited by all the peoples and sights we meet. But it is not my personal idea of travel. Perhaps this is because I am not so young and not so eager for the novelty of things that whirr by me. I am over forty. I have a daughter of twenty.

I prefer wandering. And so does my husband. But we don't often get the opportunity of wandering. I love the sailing trips on which the professor and I and the children go at Kiel. My husband lies back in the boat, hands clasped behind his head, looking through half-closed eyes at the sky. The children hum a bit. Then we all grow lazily silent. We can spend hours in that sailboat. When we cannot go to Kiel we always manage to steal off an hour or two every two weeks and go sailing in Wannsee, a lake not far from Berlin. The professor keeps a sailboat there.

The professor is not a sportsman. He does not like sailing because he can go fast in it or because it may give him exercise. To him it is an instrument of quiet pleasure. After adjusting the sail to the breeze he will lie back and let the boat drift. He is devoted to his boat.

I may not find the task of being the wife of a genius one that always conforms with my ideas of pleasure or privacy, but that of being my husband's companion I longed for nearly all my life.

Prof. Einstein and I are cousins. In Ulm, a town in southern Germany, where we were born, we played together as children. We were always very much togehter, for he was extremely shy and did not make friends easily. We are almost of one age. Even as a child he was already fond of music. I remember his composing music to which he would improvise words. He would not sing until he was absolutely alone' Frequently he would lock himself up in his room and sing, not loudly, but in a voice big enough to express his ecstacy. He was always careful not to sing too loudly that his parents might hear him. He was too shy for that.

When he was nine years old, my husband's family moved to Munich, but mine remained in Ulm.

When I grew up, I married a merchant and Prof. Einstein married a fellowt student who attended the University of Zurich with him. Neither his marriage nor mine was successful.

Ten years ago we were able to marry.

The wife of a genius should complain of a certain amount of eccentricity in her husband. Prof. Einstein is not eccentric. He wears stiff collars when the occasion demands it without protest. He hardly mislays things. At least, not more than most men. He knows when it's time for lunch and dinner.

But he never lets them interfere with his work.

He is not absent-minded.

He is never consciously rude.

He dislikes dirt and confusion.

Politically, we are socialists. Someone has called my husband a thinking, liberal democrat and I am inclined to call him that too. But for voting purposes, we are socialists.

I have been asked often why my husband and I are Zionists. The reason is not that we are orthodox Jews and believe that all Jews should go back to Palestine. Our reason is that we believe that the Jews as a race should have a country of their own. The Jews need a homeland for the sake of their dignity and their self-respect.—New York World.

RETURN FROM EUROPE

April 19, 1927.—Mr. A. J. Nesbitt, of Nesbitt, Thomson & Co., Limited, Mr. J. Sharing, of the same firm, Mr. J. B. Woodyatt, President of Southern Canada Power Co., Limited, and Mr. J. Versailles returned from France the end of the week, where they have been for the past month or six weeks looking over some Light and Power Properties.

Mr. Nesbitt stated that they had a very interesting trip and were very much impressed with conditions in France. What impressed him most was the fact that everybody in France was working and the Country seemed prosperous. Notwithstanding the fact that there are about 2,000,000 foreigners working in France, there were less than 100,000 idle and this had only occurred recently due to the improvement a few months ago in the franc, which has naturally affected some of the industries.

Mr. Nesbitt spoke very optimistically of France and stated that from his observation he believed France would remain an industrial as well as agricultural nation and emerge from her financial troubles in a satisfactory manner, and continue to be enterprising, rich and flourishing.

Mr. Nesbitt and party had an excellent opportunity of seeing conditions as they visited every part of the country from Normandy and Brittany south through the Pyrenees and along the French Riviera to the Italian frontier.

France is rich in water powers, having about 10,000,000 H.P. developed and undeveloped, of which only about 3,000,000 has been developed, and there is a good deal of talk about the development of her water powers in view of the fact that France last year imported coal to the value of 38 milliards of francs.

Simon Rothschild, for half a century a leading figure in the business world of New York, celebrated his 100th birthday at his home. More than 250 friends and associates called to offer their congratulations and 350 others sent letters or telegrams. Mr. Rothschild and his son, Frank, with whom he lives, received the callers and exchanged reminiscences, again giving proof of the remarkable memory that has always characterized him. Despite the long day's conversation, Mr. Rothschild seemed little fatigued, and was host at a dinner party given to a group of his intimate friends.

Recently there opened in Berlin, the new trial in the Fritsch-Warburg libel suit. By a queer coincidence, Fritsch's American prototype, Henry Ford, also took the witness stand in an effort to justify his series of anti-Jewish libels.

AMERICAN INVESTIGATOR IN RUMANIA SELF-APPOINTED

For the past few weeks reports have come from Rumania of investigations conducted there regarding anti-Jewish excesses by a certain Colonel Sutton G. Ament, formerly of the United States Veterans' Bureau. Inquiry disclosed the fact that Ament had no commission from the State Department of the United States to conduct such investigations and that this was carried on entirely by himself on his own account. It is further shown that Colonel Ament was at one time director of the American Relief work in Rumania, when he had the opportunity of coming in close contact with Rumanian officials. He was recently married and the present trip was in the nature of a honeymoon excursion.

He took occasion to pubish his findings in the anti-Semitic press in Rumania, declaring that he was convinced that no anti-Jewish outrages were committed in Rumania and that the Rumanian authorities treated the Jewish population justly. It is also made public that Colonel Ament intended to make public denial on reaching this country of the reports of anti-Jewish excesses in Rumania which were given currency in the press. The report was given wide publicity through the Government channels.

Renewed anti-Semitic demonstrations are reported to have occurred in Jassy and in Kishineff. The students who made the demonstrations in Kishineff attacked many passers-by and attempted to break into the house of Professor Rascanh, who expressed himself as opposed to their tactics, but were driven off by the professor who fired at them with his revolver.

NOTHING Is So SENSATIONAL As The Truth!

SUPPOSE you hand over 10c for a 2c paper and for once are given 3c change. It's not the money loss that irritates you. It's the nerve of the thing. No one likes to be gypped!

You always check your change—why not check and see that the name Orange-CRUSH is on the Bottle? The advantage is all yours.

It's like that with Orange-CRUSH. When you ask for this Quality drink, no wonder it irritates you when—as sometimes happens—you are handed an inferior imitation.

When you ask for Orange-CRUSH—be sure you get genuine Orange-CRUSH with the name Orange-CRUSH blown into the glass of the Krinkly Bottle.

Golden Oranges—Tons of Them That's Orange-CRUSH

First—the juice of luscious oranges—next, the delicate flavor of their peel—next, the zestful tang of the fruit acid found in oranges, lemons and limes. Added to this a pure food color, such as you use in your cakes and candies—pure cane sugar—healthful carbonated water. Sparkling, pure and wholesome.

BURIAL OF LUIGI LUZZATTI

The body of the great Italian Jewish statesman, Luigi Luzzatti, who died recently at the age of eighty-six, was buried in his family plot in the Jewish cemetery of Venice. The funeral was largely attended, including representatives of the royal family and of many Government institutions and Italian societies. Messages of condolence were received by the family from a number of State and international organizations as well as from a large number of Jewish organizations throughout the world.

Premier Mussolini eulogized Luzzatti in a glowing tribute delivered in Parliament, in which he declared that "Italy's high place among the nations in social legislation was due to Luzzatti's work."

"For greatness of talent, profundity of culture, disinterested devotion and public zeal, Professor Luzzatti was one of the most dominant and most representative figures," the Premier said "He was a wise and good man. It is necessary in order to re-establish the great spiritual equilibrium of the people that such men exist. They are above the struggle of conflicting interests. They recall the eternal verities without which the struggle of man against man would end in savage chaos and the downfall of all civilization."

Another tribute was paid to Luzzatti by Tittoni, the president of the Senate, and at the grave a eulogy was delivered in behalf of the Government by Wolpi.

SAMUEL UNTERMYER IN PALESTINE

Samuel Untermyer, the well-known New York attorney and at one time chairman of the Keren Hayesod in America, is now on a world tour to recuperate from a nervous disorder. Mr. Untermyer arrived in Jerusalem from Cairo by an airplane, at the invitation of the Keren Hayesod in Palestine and it was planned to give him a popular reception on his arrival. Mr Untermyer donated funds for the building of a stadium in memory of his wife, which he will be able to inspect while in Jerusalem.

The Carnegie Corporation of New York has just made public a list of twenty-nine fine arts students recommended for scholarships in this country and abroad for 1927-28. To support the scholarships in graphic and plastic arts the corporation in 1925 set aside the income from $1,000,000. Among the appointees are Daniel Goldstein and Meyer Schapiro, both graduates of Columbia University.

Judaism

¶ Our great spiritual heritage was kept alive throughout the ages amidst untold sufferings.

¶ Now the time has come when new vitality is needed to reinforce Judaism and make it blossom as in the days of old.

¶ WHAT IS TO BECOME of the many thousands of Jews in Eastern Europe who need a haven of refuge?

¶ They must be given an opportunity to make their home in Palestine.

Among those just arrived in New York is Dr. Alfred Adler, a Viennese psychologist who at one time worked with Freud and Jung and parted from them two years ago. He said he now was the exponent of "individual psychology," a theory, he explained, that was based on studies of so-called inferiority and insecurity feelings gained in early childhood or caused by an inferior constitution. He will lecture before the New York State Committee on Mental Hygiene.

DRINKING HOUSES IN JERUSALEM

A question was recently asked in the House of Commons as to whether it was true that there was a tremendous increase of licenses granted for the sale of alcoholic liquors in Jerusalem and at the railway stations in Palestine. Mr. Amery replied that he had no information on the subject, but that he belived that the increase was due to increase in the population. It was mentioned that the number of licensed premises in Jerusalem has increased from thirty-five to three hundred, and one member asked whether this was not changing the old description of a land flowing with milk and honey to a land flowing with beer and whisky. Mr. Amery promised to make inquiries on the matter.

Great Convenience for Cooking

ALL the year 'round, it is a great saving of energy to have foods and milk close at hand—clean and safe—in your refrigerator.

Ice costs very little, compared with its great convenience. In fact, it will be found to pay for itself in food saved and doctor bills prevented.

It is simply good, common sense to continue ice service.

Samuel Kronick, whose portrait in oils by the Toronto Jewish artist, Soboloff, will be presented to him in recognition of his work for Zionism at the Keren Hayesod campaign banquet Sunday evening, April 24, at the King Edward Hotel. Mr. Kronick was born in Kovno, Lithuania, May 15, 1880, the son of David and Reine (Reines) Kronick. He was educated through private tuition and his first business position was with a sewing machine company in his native town. Mr. Kronick has been a Zionist since the inception of the movement, and in 1900 he went to London as a delegate to the Zionist Congress. He spent nine months in England, during that time lecturing on Zionism, and then went to the United States, where he continued his lectures. In 1902 he went to Toronto, where he has lived since. He is one of the founders of the Bnai Zion, the first Zionist Society in Toronto, is a member of the Zionist Council of Canada. He was vice-president of the Central Division. Mr. Kronick is president of the Hebrew Free Loan Society and a trustee of Federation. He is on the executive of the Immigrant Aid Society and is a member of Holy Blossom, Goel Tzedec and Yavna Zionist synagogues. On December 26, 1912, Mr. Kronick was married to Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Willinsky, of Toronto, and he has two sons, Moses and Joseph Leon, and two daughters, Miriam and Leah. He is a member of the Primrose Club, Canadian Club, Toronto Board of Trade, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Bnai Brith and Mount Sinai Lodge, A.F. & A.M. Shortly after arriving in Toronto, Mr. Kronick entered the manufacture of ladies' hats, organizing the American Hat Frame Manufacturing Co., of which he is the active head. At that time eighty-five per cent. of the women's hats were imported and this business has so developed that now eighty-five per cent. of the hats worn in Canada are manufactured in this country and only fifteen per cent. imported. Mr. Kronick is one of the pioneers of this industry. His home is at 106 Madison Avenue.

Frau Ludendorff, wife of the erstwhile Quartermaster General of the German Imperial Army, who has taken up the cudgels against the opponents of the ultra-reactionary Voelkisch theories and creeds, says that "Freemasonry and Jesuitism are aiding the Jewish race to subdue and enslave the Germans and all the Nordic races." Frau Ludendorff, who, according to German custom, is addressed as "Frau Doctor General," made her initial appearance on the lecture platform in Berlin before a packed auditorium. The crowd being composed of party friends and the curious. Although the speaker possessed an excellent lecturing voice, her arguments backing up her assertions were mostly based on feminine intuition instead of logic.

"Frisco Sally Levy," a sparkling comedy romance of Irish-Jewish life with Sally O'Neil and Roy D'Arcy, comes to Loew's Theatre next week. William Beaudine, who directed Mary Pickford in "Little Annie Rooney," directed this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen hit, in which Sally O'Neil plays the part of a hoydenish and impulsive girl courted by two lovers. Roy D'Arcy is the Jewish lover and Charles Delaney the Irish suitor. Tenen Holtz contributes a distinguished bit of character acting to this film as Sally's father, and Kate Price, as her mother, does equally good work. A LETTER TO JEWS

Georgetown, Ont
April 18, 1927.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW,

Spring is at hand and our manager, Mr. Fanaberia, at the Farm School (a graduate of Cornell University), needs the following articles in order to put the farm on a paying basis, and to supply the children with food and work upon their arrival.

3,000 chicks,
15-25 cows,
1 team horses,
1 set harness,
1 sulky plow,
1 new chicken house (large),
1 driving shed,
Repairs to barn and fences.
Seeds (as per list enclosed).

This will cost approximately $5,000.00, of which amount we will have to pay half; these things are needed at once, and there is not a dollar to get it with. There is also about $150.00 owing for feed, therefore something must be done immediately to raise this amount.

We have nine men on our pay roll, four paid monthly, four paid weekly, and they cannot wait for their money, so I have been paying them myself, and have had to advance money on articles which were needed at once.

Our understanding with the immigration department was that all the orphans would be taught agriculture. This must be carried out. No Jew in Canada can afford to make light of this movement.

I trust you will think this matter over seriously and see if a conference of prominent Jews in Toronto can be called immediately in order to raise the necessary funds to carry on.

Yours very truly,
The Canadian Jewish Farm School.
M. SAXE, President.

Moses Finkelstein, of Syracuse, N.Y., who is now only fifteen has just graduated from Syracuse University with Phi Beta Kappa honours. He is the youngest student to graduate with such honours. Moses has been a precocious child all his life and has created sensation after sensation since his days in grammar school.

Rabbi Isserman's Editorial

He is ready to criticize any policy international or domestic, which tends to sully his country's reputation, which seems selfish, unjust or indecent. He is more anxious to see his country right than successful. He will always insist that its primary loyalty should be not to its commercial interests but to the highest ideals of the race. He will not hesitate to condemn an iniquitous programme.

This type of patriotism it seems fills Miss MacPhail. She loves her country, is devoted to its people, and because she loves her country and is anxious to hold high its banner of idealism, she is opposed to it doing an injustice, especially to a weaker people.

In regards to her opposition to military training in the public school, we find ourselves in complete agreement. The cadet system is of no military value as leading military authorities will testify. The physical benefits of military training can be more effectively achieved through gymnastics and recreation. Its only value is to instil the military ideal in the child, for as he drills and marches, his soul is being drilled, and he is being won over to the philosophy that wars are necessary and inevitable. The cadet system should have no place in the schools of communities who are anxious to promote the ideals of peace and goodwill.

Miss MacPhail's invitation to speak at a women's suffrage meeting was cancelled. Yet what a pity! For women of her type entering the political arena with ideals and courage to advocate them are vindicating woman's right to suffrage. Those men who advocated woman sufffage, did so not only because they felt woman should have equal rights with men, but also because they felt that woman's voice would be helpful in the political life; that whereas men were primarily interested in business, women would be primarily interested in human beings. They felt that woman's influence would be for peace against war, for social improvement and social justice. Such an influence Miss MacPhail seems to be. More power to her! And alas for those women who went a-witch-hunting after her.

SHANGHAI JEWS IN PRESENT CRISIS

"Israel's Messenger," of Shanghai, reports that Jewish young men have responded in large numbers to the call for volunteers in the Volunter Service Corps. Ellis Haylm, who is at the head of the movement, reported that a number of applicants who were of Russian, German and Austrian nationalities were not regarded as eligible for service owing to their having lost their extra-territorial rights.

Sir Elly S. Kadoorie, who has been in London during the time of the outbreak, gave instructions by cable to place his palatial mansion in Shanghai at the disposal of the British authorities who were coping with the problem of providing quarters for their troops. S. A. Hardoon also offered a large territory attached to his mansion, which was in a short time made ready for a hospital, capable of giving accommodation to doctor, nurses and 400 patients.

A HEALTH DRINK

The richness of Orange-CRUSH is captured from millions of great, golden oranges—California oranges, bathed in golden sunlight, ripened to rich sweetness under nature's radiant glow—that's the very heart of Orange-CRUSH, Canada's favourite fruit-flavoured drink bottled in ninety-two plants from coast to coast.

Orange-CRUSH is rich in orange juice. An no wonder—

In 1926 the Exchange Orange Products Company of San Dimas, California, used 350 carloads of fresh, ripe oranges to fill one order for the Orange-CRUSH Company.

Just picture them—golden oranges by the train load and all for Orange-CRUSH. Freight car after freight car of California's banner fruit all destined for the Orange-CRUSH Krinkly Bottle. Three hundred and fifty cars to a single order. Tons and tons of oranges for the wo ld's favorite fruit-flavoured drink!

WHAT ORANGE-CRUSH CONTAINS

Picture, then, millions of oranges processed so as to yield all the delicate flavour and aroma of the actual fruit. Processed without the use of artificial preservatives and in such a way as to place them within the reach of every pocket book.

Orange-CRUSH is nothing more nor less than, first—the juice of luscious oranges—next, the delicate flavour of their peel—next, the zestful tang of the fruit acid found in oranges, lemons and limes. Added to this a pure colour, such as you use in your cakes and candies—pure cane sugar—healthful carbonated water.

ENDORSED BY THE PHYSICIAN

In issuing a certificate of merit to the Orange-CRUSH Company, the Illinois State Medical Society gave Orange-CRUSH unqualified approval:

"We hereby certify that Orange-CRUSH was accepted and exhibited at the National Baby Congress and Health Exposition conducted by the Illinois State Medical Society.

"In the judgment of our committee on examination of the exhibits, Orange-CRUSH is entitled to a certificate of merit, as being a pure and wholesome fruit-flavoured carbonated beverage."

WHY IT'S SO GOOD FOR CHILDREN

Mothers can safely give the children all the Orange-CRUSH they like. Not only is Orange-CRUSH pure, healthful and delicious, but Orange-CRUSH has food value as well.

The food value of a 6-oz. Krinkly Bottle of carbonated Orange-CRUSH is 187 calories while the food value of a fresh, ripe orange 3 inches in diameter when peeled is 121 calories. Therefore a 6-oz. Krinkly Bottle of Orange-CRUSH has food value equal to 1½ times that found in a medium sized fresh ripe orange.

Orange-CRUSH is more than merely delicious—it's good for the health.

COMPLIES WITH THE MEDICAL PROFESSION'S STRICTEST PURE FOOD STANDARDS

The American Medical Association, made up of leading physicians of the country, publishes a monthly magazine known as "Hygeia" containing the latest findings on the subject of good health.

Naturally, the pure food standards which advertised products must live up to in order to be accepted by "Hygeia" are the strictest in the world. Orange-CRUSH is the only fruit-flavoured carbonated beverage which has ever gained admission to the advertising pages of "Hygeia."

ORANGE-CRUSH QUALITY COSTS NO MORE. SUBSTITUTES ALWAYS DEAREST TO BUY

Now and then men behind the counter will foist a cheap imitation when the public asks for Orange-CRUSH. This type of dealer substitutes because of the fraction of a cent more profit on each bottle of an inferior drink he sells. But most Orange-CRUSH dealers are honest. They are merchants who hand out Orange-CRUSH when it is asked for. Although Orange-CRUSH costs them more than cheap imitations it brings them satisfied customers and lots of them. That is why dealers make more money with Orange-CRUSH.

THE SHORT CUT

Every advertisement in your paper is a short cut. Advertisements make it possible to tell you in a few minutes all you want to know about the service or articles you need.

At a glance you can sift what interests you most and in a moment you know just when and where to go for what you want.

Then you realize the great economy and necessity of advertising in your daily life.
